DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 6 and 17 are objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 6, line 2, subject matter in parentheses in a claim are not generally given any patentable weight. In claim 17, line 2, "a ultraviolet" should be "an ultraviolet". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 11, lines 1-2, "each said advertising mural" is confusing since this suggests that there is more than one mural and claim 8 suggests that there is only one mural. In claim 11, line 2, "its associated said panel" is confusing since it is not clear which panel the applicant is referring to, i.e. the first or second panel or a panel from another mural.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,3-5, 7,8,10, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by "Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet" in which the examiner takes official notice that he has had the cabinet since at least 1997.

“Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” includes a first door panel (the door on the left, see the enclosed figure of the “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet”) having a first portion of an image (includes the letters CH and a portion of the building with people and horses) and a second door panel (the door on the right) having a second portion of the image (including the letters “eers” and the rest of the building and people and horses). The first and second portions of the image are not removable since they are screen printed onto the doors. The first and second door panels cooperatively form a complete rendition of the image. In regard to claim 3, the “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” includes high contrast color image, i.e. the image includes red and blue in it. In regard to claim 4, “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” is considered to be an advertising mural, i.e. advertising the show “Cheers”. In regard to claim 5, as broadly defined, the doors on “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” are considered to be “stowage bin doors”. In regard to claim 7, the image portions formed on the panels which form the doors can not be separated from the doors since the image portions are silk-screened onto the panels. In regard to claim 8, as broadly defined, the “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” is capable of being used in an aircraft. In regard to claims 1 and 8, the first and second doors/panels of “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” are capable of being quickly removed, i.e. the doors are attached with hinges which include screws so the doors can be easily taken off of the cabinet.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2,6,9, and 12-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” in which the examiner takes official notice that he has had the cabinet since at least 1997 in view of Apel et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,126,112).

In regard to claims 2,9, and 12-14, “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” does not disclose the idea of attaching the mural onto the doors coupled to a stowage bin. Apel et al. shows in figure 1 the idea of attaching indicia to doors coupled to a stowage bin. In view of the teachings of Apel et al. it would have been obvious to one in the art to modify “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” by attaching the mural to doors coupled to stowage bins since this would allow the idea of placing a portion of a mural on each door to be used in a wider range of locations, i.e. doors on an aircraft, train, etc. In regard to claims 15-18, “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” does not disclose the idea of attaching the mural onto the doors coupled to a mobile platform. Apel et al. shows in figure 1 the idea of attaching indicia to doors coupled to a stowage bin in an aircraft. In view of the teachings of Apel et al. it would have been obvious to one in the art to modify “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” by attaching the mural to doors coupled to stowage bins of an aircraft since this would allow the idea of placing a portion of a mural on each door to be used in a wider range of locations, i.e. doors on an aircraft, train, etc. In regard to claim 15, it is not clear whether “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” places the mural on the doors and then attaches the doors to the cabinet. It would have been obvious to one in the art to modify “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” by placing the mural on the doors and then attaching the door to the cabinet/mobile platform since this would allow the device to be made in an easier and faster manner. In regard to claims 6,14, and 17, “Harvard Cheers Dartboard Cabinet” does not disclose whether the image comprises at least one ultraviolet stable color. Apel et al. discloses in column 4, lines 12-30 the idea of using UV cured ink. In view of the teachings of Apel et al. it would have been obvious to one in the art to use UV stable color since this would create a longer lasting and more durable image.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Harris and Mann et al. teach the use of a mural on doors. Yaworski teaches the use of removable doors.
